

From: Roy Weeks
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/25/02 6:03pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

To: DOJ:

It seems to me that today in this country the government is out to take as much money from every legitimate business it can; tobacco whose product was, and still is a legitimate product for those over 21 years of age. In fact it was legal for years for those 18 and over in many states. What compounds your hypocrisy is the fact that you enjoy millions of dollars for pet programs on the backs of those who choose of their own free will to purchase tobacco profits; ref. federal tax on tobacco products. Additionally, the federal government subsidized the tobacco farmers for many years probably still does. Now you have sued one of the most successful high tech corporations in the history of this nation because they provided the "best" product to the American public. It's time to get off your pedestal and rethink what your greed for these successful company's profits....you already take too much from "john q. public." You've lost this citizen's respect based on your past and present actions.

Roy L. Weeks

Roy L. Weeks
rweeks@cableone.net

CC: MSFIN@microsoft.com@inetgw